

PPE

PERSONAL PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT

ARC FLASH WORKERS

The most recent NFPA 70E standard identifies 4 PPE categories related to incident energy analyses. Each number represents an increased risk of danger and requires a higher level of PPE as shown below.

PPE CATEGORY	PPE CATEGORY	PPE CATEGORY	PPE CATEGORY

Arc Rating Minimum 4 cal/cm²	Arc Rating Minimum 8 cal/cm²	Arc Rating Minimum 25 cal/cm²	Arc Rating Minimum 40 cal/cm²
This is the lowest level when arc-rated PPE is required to perform a work function. This category requires a single layer of arc-rated PPE material. Body: Long sleeve shirt or coat and pants. Workers can also use coveralls. Face and Head: Wrap-around face shield with guarding or a comparable arc flash suit hood. Supplemental PPE: Arc-rated jackets, rainwear, and lined hard hats.	Although this is the second category for protective measures when dealing with arc flash, most businesses utilize Category 2 materials in place of Category 1 for added protection and versatility. Body: Arc-rated long sleeve shirt or jacket, pants, and/or coveralls. Face and Head: Arc-rated face shield or flash suit hood and sock hoods. Supplemental PPE: Arc-rated jackets, rainwear, and lined hard hats.	Both PPE categories 3 and 4 require multiple layers of PPE. Arc flash hoods and rubber insulated gloves with leather protectors are mandatory. Body: arc-rated flash suit jacket, pants, and/or coveralls. Face and Head: Arc-rated flash hood. Hands: Rubber insulated gloves with leather protectors or specific arc-rated gloves. Supplemental PPE: Arc-rated jackets and rainwear.	Both PPE categories 3 and 4 require multiple layers of PPE. Arc flash hoods and rubber insulated gloves with leather protectors are mandatory. Body: arc-rated flash suit jacket, pants, and/or coveralls. Face and Head: Arc-rated flash hood. Hands: Rubber insulated gloves with leather protectors or specific arc-rated gloves. Supplemental PPE: Arc-rated jackets and rainwear.
	Mandatory For environments requiring Category 2 PPE, it is also mandatory to use protective eyewear, gloves, hearing protection, and leather shoes.	Mandatory For environments requiring Category 3 PPE, it is also mandatory to use hard hats, protective eyewear, gloves, hearing protection, and leather shoes.	Mandatory For environments requiring Category 4 PPE, it is also mandatory to use hard hats, protective eyewear, gloves, hearing protection, and leather shoes.